This 50" 2008 female Banded Amel Motley is Het for Ultra. She was brumated from October 10, 2012 to January 31, 2013 so she is eating every five DAYS and should be ready for breeding in a few weeks. She is very friendly and has never attempted to bite (typical corn). She is border-line obese, but with a diet of one adult mouse per week, she will not gain more weight that contributes to obesity. The banding trait is thought to be non-mutational, meaning that it is inherited via polygenetic interactions.
