2008 female Bloodred Corn Snake. She is 46" long, eating frozen/thawed adult mice. She fits the loose description of an OLD-SCHOOL Bloodred via her relatively dull red coloration and her semi-obvious dorso-lateral striping. Her price of $225.00 USD includes FREE SHIPPING

Note that the tail is unusually shaped. It is shorter partially due to what some call spinal train wreck where some vertebrae and adjacent scales are smaller, rendering a shorter anatomical feature (in this case, a shorter tail). It has not impacted her breeding at all.

Side view demonstrating a section of shorter tail scales (and adjacent smaller caudal vertebrae).
