

Show & $ell

{product id=1066}

This 2013 male Hypo Corn was sold to me as being het for Lavender. He is now 36" long, eating frozen/thawed hopper mice. I don't recall seeing this very often but there is NOT one black dot on his body. Makes me wonder if that could be from a new gene mutation, since even the most spectacular Hypomelanistic corn mutants in the hobby have SOME black on their bodies. Also, his banding should enhance other corn projects. His $275.00 price includes