This 32" male corn is the product of pairing a Java with a Kastanie. His $175.00 price includes His price would be almost double if I knew for sure he is a Kastanie. Continuing breeding trials will seek to unravel this genetic mystery.

The project was an attempt to discover if the Java morph is actually Kastanie. Results were promising, but because the two look so much alike, it's still unclear if the snake you are seeing now is a pure corn or a mutation other than Kastanie?
