This 2010 male Lavender Motley Corn Snake is currently 44" long, eating frozen/thawed adult mice. I sold him when he was a hatchling and got him back the following week because I had not noticed several minor spinal kinks, all of which I'm now unable to detect visually or by palpation. He looks like most of the "Mystery Lavender Line" I've had, so that's a strong possibility, having acquired him from Rich Hume? His $235.00 USD price includes
