This 2016 26" Red Factor Anery female is currently eating frozen/thawed fuzzy mice. As is always the case with gene mutations that are dominant-to-wild-type, there are varying degrees of expression (of red, in this case). This one shows little pink because she inherited only one of the paired gene copies for Red Factor, so her exhibition of pink is essentially half (or less) than her homozygote counterparts that inherit both of the paired gene copies. Her $225.00 USD price includes
