

SHOW AND TELL:

FLASH BACK from three years ago toDAY. These two beautiful unrelated Tesseras hatched in 2013, and were the S.O.T.D. feature on February 20, 2014 on this web site and on South Mountain Reptiles' Facebook Page. The red and white one is from Candy Cane heritage, but the gray-striped one has Ghost and Charcoal in his family tree. I sold them back in 2014 so I have no idea what they look like toDAY. That's the saddest part of producing and selling snakes (not discovering what they look like at maturity).
