

Show & Tell

This young adult Visual-het Red Factor Blizard male bred this very old female Blizard a couple of weeks ago. Next year, this male will breed a few females that are not quite safely large enough to breed this season, which will render, of course, a percentage of Red Factor Homozygote Blizzards. We're expecting the pink to POP on those homozygotes next year? Note the cataracts on eyes of the female (she hatched in 2002), who has been a very productive SMR breeder for many years.
