

Show & Tell

A truly supreme example of the Striped Bloodred mutation compound. Most adults of this morph exhibit those faint “tweener” dorsal oval markings and broken striping, but fortunately, most of them diffuse so heavily through maturity that most would swear that they are essentially pattern-less. We should be offering 2016 hatchlings this year, but there will be precious few since we have only two breeders that are this nice (this being one of them).