

Each DAY at 11:00 am. ct (GMT - 5) we will post a different SMR snake being offered at a special price.

All snakes will be chosen for their rarity and/or unique beauty.

FREE U.S. SHIPPING for each Snake-of-the-Day.

{simpleproduct:id=514}

toDAY's SNAKE of the DAY Thu. March 7, 2013)

#030713

Anerythristic A Corn Snake

Male

d.o.h. 2010

36" long on March 2, 2013

$225.00 shipped

This male 2010 Anery Corn is now 36" long and eating frozen/thawed hopper mice. His father is a Kastanie Het for Anery so in addition to being visually an Anery mutant, he may also be a Kastanie. If it's just an Anery mutant, you may perhaps be paying too much for a beautiful corn, but if it's an Anery Kastanie, you're getting him for a very low price. The inordinate amount of carotenoid yellow on this snake surely indicates it's also Kastanie, but I cannot prove that right now. AND if he has this much yellow now, there should be more than twice this much in a year. Also, dietary carotenoid demonstration never ceases. He will continue to get more and more yellow until the DAY he dies.

More about Anery mutants