

Show & Tell

This odd Tessera hatched (parentage dark Tessera X eXtreme Reverse Okeetee) on March 14th, so in about three weeks (after at least three consecutive meals of f/t pinky mice) I'll find out if someone out there needs him more than me. Ahuuummm, cough, wink; via putting a price on him that encourages people to leave him right here at SMR? lol. Seriously, everything I have is for sale, but in the case of unique corns like this one, I'm happy when some of them don't sell. This male should be an amazing photo op at maturity? Oh yeah, also a breeder that could produce more like himself? . . .
