

Show & Tell

Two adult Snow corns with more yellow than most Snows. The one on the left was featured on SMR FaceBook page and web site, www.corn snake.NET on March 5th with her eggs, but the other adult female Snow in toDAY's photograph was recently bred on March 19th. Both were bred to Scaleless types, but the paler of the two was bred to a homozygote (Visual) Scaleless Sunkissed Hypo mutant, so all this year's babies from her will be het for Amel, Anery, Scaleless, Sunkissed and Hypo. The obvious goal of those pairings is to see how much of the yellow will be evident in Scaleless Snows.
