

Show & Tell

2016 Tiger Okeetee (not for sale). This gem was produced by Catherine Turley last year. Awesome banding, Catherine! Years ago, I applied the word TIGER to Banded Okeetees with somewhat atypically shaped markings that often resembled the vertical markings on tigers, helping those cats blend into the shadows of their natural habitat. The standard for them, years ago, was to produce those with the highest number of crooked and often chaotic markings, so as to resemble their namesake feline. This one is het for Charcoal and possibly het for Amel. Our first Banded Charcoal Okeetees derived from Banded Extreme Okeetees that looked just like this one. I'm excited to work with them once again. Thanks, Catherine. BTW, is that black lateral facial band awesome, or what? Bonus Pics
