

Show & Tell

Years ago, I learned that the best adult eXtreme Okeetee corns (ones with best deep color and widest black blotch borders) were essentially the least colorful in the first weeks of their lives. In fact, many of the best adults I've had over the years looked like Anerythristic corn snakes when they hatched, except for the tell-tale brown irises of their eyes? All of these in toDAY's pics will be exceptional eXtreme Okeetees at maturity. They will be listed for sale in the next two or three weeks, after they have demonstrated their appetite for frozen/thawed pinky mice. Bonus pic
