

Show & Tell

This appears to be an exceptional Miami Phase corn snake, and it IS, but I cheated. The only reason I cite that one of the parents of this Miami was a Tessera is to demonstrate the amazing collateral genetic power of the Tessera gene mutation. It seems that virtually every morph or mutation that is combined with Tessera not only makes exceptionally beautiful Tesseras, but also enhances their non-Tessera siblings (like this one).