

The Snake-of-the-Day headliner of this web site features photographs that we believe will interest our web site visitors. Each daily photograph will be posted at 11:00 am. central (GMT - 5) and replaced in 24 hours. Feel free to make suggestions regarding what snake photographs you would like to see in this daily feature. The animals pictured here are not for sale, unless otherwise noted, but you can find available surplus snakes for sale on the Surplus Page of this web site. We appreciate your patronage and welcome any suggestions you may have.

The primary reason I photograph conjugal events is for positive identification of the sire. I don't photograph them in large boxes because sometimes they copulate stretched out across the length of the cage and I can't get a tight shot. I put several pairs together and then, flit around like a bee in the garden - going from cage to cage - monitoring progress. When I encounter a pair that is breeding, I take the picture to verify who bred whom. In this case, as soon as I put them together I was called away to the phone and forgot about them. When I can't at least get a shot of them "in the act" I try for a shot with SOME evidence of conjugation. See it in this picture?
