Don't let this odd ball slip through your fingers. This 2017 female hatchling Snow corn snake is currently 17" long, eating frozen/thawed medium pinky mice. In 2017 I bred my best eXtreme Reverse Okeetee to an eXtreme Reverse Okeetee that I'd never used before, and one of the eggs had this female Snow in it. Why does she look this way? How will she look at maturity? I don't know, but she shows great color promise. Keep in mind that under this odd SNOW facade, she's still an eXtreme Reverse Okeetee, so she would be a good breeder for that and for trying to make more like her via using a Snow or an Reverse Okeetee het for Anery?
