

Show & Tell

Pipping on June 24th, 2015, these Leucistic Black Rats have been highly anticipated. After losing a primary male in this project four years ago, we're finally up and "walking" again. We hope to have this project "running again" next year, but there are precious few of these to sell this year. Three or more years of deposits, prepayments, and reservations for them, these were dibbied long before hatching this week. Hopefully, next year we'll have enough to supply demand? Yes, after this photograph I slit the shell on the one that was "sleeping in".
