

The Snake-of-the-Day headliner of this web site features photographs that we believe will interest our web site visitors. Each daily photograph will be posted at 11:00 am. central (GMT - 5) and replaced in 24 hours. Feel free to make suggestions regarding what snake photographs you would like to see in this daily feature. The animals pictured here are not for sale, unless otherwise noted, but you can find available surplus snakes for sale on the Surplus Page of this web site. We appreciate your patronage and welcome any suggestions you may have.

Not all, but many of the exceptional Okeetee variants begin as the color-opposite of their beautiful mature counterparts; lackluster. The dark snake in the left-hand image is a Buckskin Okeetee. His markings barely (if at all) exhibit the rich mahogany colors they'll display at maturity. Some equally beautiful Okeetee Variants exhibit colored markings as soon as they hatch, so don't gage the potential of either neonatal look. The Buckskin Okeetee has no relationship to the Creamsicle Bloodred. I just wanted contrast in the picture since I chose such a dark substratum. But while I'm here, I may as well show a more orange sibling of that Creamsicle Okeetee.
