

The Snake-of-the-Day headliner of this web site features photographs that we believe will interest our web site visitors. Each daily photograph will be posted at 11:00 am. central (GMT - 5) and replaced in 24 hours. Feel free to make suggestions regarding what snake photographs you would like to see in this daily feature. The animals pictured here are not for sale, unless otherwise noted, but you can find available surplus snakes for sale on the Surplus Page of this web site. We appreciate your patronage and welcome any suggestions you may have.

First Yawn?? Perhaps, but more likely the only way to satisfy an itch (in the absence of limbs) when separating epidermal generations tickle? Just a family of Snow corns hangin out together, waiting for their first shed. At right, arguably the least colored & patterned corn snake morph, the Whiteouts (Bloodred Blizzards) on the right are the whitest corns there are (other than Palmettos, that is). Naturally, these are pink now, but most of our adult Whiteouts are virtually pure white with no carotenoid yellow on them. The gold flakes on these snakes is from the vermiculite hatch medium.
