

Show & Tell

Some call them wide-striped corns, but I don't like to use that term since it may suggest the misconception that they are some form of Striped mutant. In fact, their looks derive from polygenetics instead of gene mutation. Of course the respective colors of these Amel and Charcoal Zagtecs are due to color gene mutations. Bonus Pics . . .