

The Snake-of-the-Day headliner of this web site features photographs that we believe will interest our web site visitors. Each daily photograph will be posted at 11:00 am. central (GMT - 5) and replaced in 24 hours. Feel free to make suggestions regarding what snake photographs you would like to see in this daily feature. The animals pictured here are not for sale, unless otherwise noted, but you can find available surplus snakes for sale on the Surplus Page of this web site. We appreciate your patronage and welcome any suggestions you may have.

This busily marked 2013 female Tessera (two angles of the same snake) is the product of pairing a Tessera (Het Amel) to a Candy Cane. Aside from her chaotic markings, her head almost seems to glow, apparently from being a lighter shade of red than the rest of her body. BTW, there's that cute red tail tip like one I showed you on a different Tessera over a week ago. And "yes" she ate a plump pinky mouse just an hour before posing for pictures.
