This 2016 male Striped Tessera emerged from his egg early on the morning of August 8th. His mother is one of the first Tesseras we ever hatched (2007) and his father is a Butter Motley het for Sunkissed. That sire has produced many Honey Motleys for us, so the Striped Tessera featured toDAY is het for Butter Motley and has the potential to be het for Sunkissed (therefore, het Honey). He cannot be shipped until he has voluntarily eaten three frozen/thawed pinky mice (anticipated shipping as early as August 24th - since his family tree yields great pinky-feeders). His $145.00 USD price includes I don't customarily advertise corns before they're ready to ship, but since this is the only one with the genotype that I'll be offering this year, I making an exception by advertising him now.
