

This 2010 female Tessera (unknown hets) is 37" long, eating frozen/thawed adult mice. She will be of breedable size for 2014. She has a slight scar on her nose from a cage injury when she was a hatchling. While pushing against an air hole on the side of her hatchling cage, she cut her nose right behind her rostral scales.