Show & Tell

This beautiful Anery-type corn is the 2nd generation product of pairing two snakes I acquired long ago from Nancy Wimer (thank you, Nancy). She sent a beautiful adult Anery Motley and an adult Charcoal that I bred to get many Anery babies. Breeding just about any two of them together yielded one like toDAY's featured snake in each brood. In addition to Snows, Aneries, Charcoals and Charcoal Aneries, there was just one each season like this one. Also, none of the others had any pink on them. Don't we all love such puzzles?
