

SHOW & TELL

Some Palmettos even show random color in their eye(s). As seen here, non-typical color in the iris usually looks like rust, but since it does not change in color and volume, it is more likely chromatophoric. I would say that THIS mutation breaks the rules of leucism, but that's the very role of gene mutations of any species. Genetic EXTREMISTS??? S . . .