

Show & Tell

Photo taken indoors without flash by iPhone, demonstrating sub adults; a CHERRY AMEL (left) and a CAYENNE FIRE (right). While never having crossed the two red-modified mutant Amels, I believe that the dramatization of red in these two corns is not from the same gene mutation. So that others may see how truly red these two snakes are, if they are not opaque from impending sheds, they will both be on display at the booth of Travis Whisler Reptiles at Tinley Park NARBC in October.