

SHOW & TELL

A new friend I met at the NRBE in Daytona Beach two weeks ago (Ken) asked me to send him pictures of the parents of the corn he purchased at our booth; a Butter, Het for Scaleless Saffron Motley. Since I sold a few others from these parents, I'll just post the pictures here for the other customers to see also. The (above) male Scaleless is obviously het Butter (both in appearance AND evidenced by some of the progeny from this pairing being Butters) and the Saffron Motley female (below) is not het for anything that I'm aware.
