

Show & Tell

There's nothing visually unusual about this brood of Amel corns AND nothing really that genetically rare about them either, but they are progeny of an Amel Tessera bred to a Striped Fire (Striped Amel Bloodred). The next generation for these future breeders will render some Striped Fire Tesseras. These will be much more colorful after they slough their first skins in a few DAYS.