Comments: Superior color and size maturity.

This Female Ultramel Bloodred needs to be cooled if you want her to breed in 2013. If she is not sold, she will be cooled next week, preparing her for 2013 breeding. She will grow more than one inch in brumation and prior to laying eggs, another three inches of aggressive feeding so she can store fats for producing eggs. She should be over 36" by the time she lays her eggs in 2013. She has a calm demeanor and has never attempted to bite, so if you're looking for a pet that has deep colors, within one year her reds will have saturated to mature coloration.
